JAMES CASSIDY TO ADDRESS NILES CHAMBER

At the meeting Monday of the Niles Chamber of Commerce it was suggested that a speaker be obtained for the next meeting to explain the Riley-Stewart plan, senate constitutional amendment No. 30, which will appear on the June 27 ballot as proposal No. 1. The suggestion was approved by the civic group.

Word was received from F. V. Jones, chamber president, Monday that Representaive James M. Cassidy had consented to be a guest of the Niles Chamber on June 19. Cassidy will talk on the so-called Riley-Stewart plan, and explain its significance to the real estate business in California.

War Veteran Then Kills Wife and Commits Suicide

A hurried call to the Township Register from a large San Francisco daily newspaper at 1:00 Saturday, asked the staff here to cover a double murder and suicide that was supposed to have happened in the town of Niles. After a diligent search it was discovered that the San Francisco paper had been mistaken in its location of the tragedy, which occured at a ranch just south of Hayward.

Alvin E. Dixon, World War veteran, after threatening for several weeks, at noon Saurday shot and killed his estranged wife, Nola, 26, and his step-sister, Miss Marjorie Gilbank, 17, and then committed suicide.

Clarence Springer, of Newark, escaped what may have been serious injury, or possibly death, when he left the house in which the shooting occured, as Dixon was driving in. Springer had been visiting Miss Gelbank.

According to reports, Dixon, several days previous to the shooting, had visited Fred Lowrie at Centerville, and in the course of conversation had mentioned his displeasure at family developments, and said he would like to shoot them all. Lowrie, it is said, drove to Hayward and told Mrs. Dixon and Miss Gilbank of Dixon's threats. Neither of the women took it seriously, saying that Dixon was incapable of committing such a crime. Miss Gilbank was warned at the time to return to her Centerville home until the trouble blew over. She was the daughter of Zeb Gilbank, of Centerville.

VASCONCELLOS TO BE PRINCIPAL AT MT. EDEN SCHOOL

John Vasconcellos, principal at the Mission San Jose Grammar school for th past five years, has recently announced his resignation to take over the principalship o the Mt. Eden Grammar school. Vasconcellos will assume the position here filled last year by E. Burroughs.

During his five-year stay at the Mission school, Vasconcellos has made many close friends in the town as well as raised the status of the school from a three-teacher to a four-teacher rating. The announcement of his resignation evoked tears from his students.

Vasconcellos says that his interest in Washington township will not wane. He intends to maintain his friends and connections here.

OLD ALUMNI HONORED

Mrs. J. E. Thane was guest of honor at an alumni gathering Saturday at Mills College. Alumni of classes dating from 1872 were present. Mrs. Thane acknowledged a toast as the oldest alumna at the gathering. She took as guests to the function, Mrs. A. F. Thane and Mrs. J. R. Whipple.

Insists Selfish Groups Are Behind Taxpayers' Associations

Speaking on the much discussed taxation problems, E. Dixon Bristow, speaker for the day, Monday told the Niles Chamber of Commerce of insidous forces behind the formaton of taxpayers' organizatons throughout the state of California. Stating that the mechanisms of the taxpayers' leagues derived their motive power through the machinations of large public utilities corporations in quest of reduced corporation taxes, Bristow deplored the gullibility of the taxpaying public. and the latters' blind participation in movements fostered by selfish factions.

Bristow, who is principal of the Niles Grammar school, was particularly indigant about efforts being made by taxpayers' organizatons to reduce the expenditures of the public school system. He stated that the schools have stood for a great deal of unjust criticism, and have suffered innumerable attacks, which he holds to be entirely unjustifed, in view of the fact that the educational system as it stands today is performing a stupendous task in fitting the children to maintain the governmetn of tomorow. Bristow intimated that the "so-called" hard times, and alarmist propaganda have conceived innumerable attacks upon the hard-working and zealous administrators and teachers of the public schools.

In speaking of California, Bristow said that the schools of other states were neither as architecturally beautiful nor as efficient scholastically as are those in this state. He condemned attempts to whittle from the schools costs.

Bristow made known his disapproval of cuts suggested by the Taxpayers' League of Washington Township, saying further that the league, although it has some fine motives, is largely "ignorant" of school problems. The various boards of trustees in the eight school districts of Washington township, Bristow said, are men chosen for their integrity and responsibility and were not blind to the need of some "moderate" reduction. The Taxpayers' League, however, has gone too far, he said. Bristow maintains that the schools are facing the problems of the future, and should be heartily supported by the public at large

H. L. Scott, member of the Washington Union High school board of trustees, in discussing salary cuts at Washington Union High school, said that the taxpayers' league is a valuable organization to the region, and if the high school salaries had been cut moderately previous to this year, that the drastic action recently taken by the league would not have been necessary. He stated further that the local tax organization should follow up all excessive channels of public expenditures.

A. J. Rathbone suggested that a speaker should be secured for the next meeting to discus the Riley-Stewart plan, Amendment No. 1, to be voted upon the 27th of this month.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

By NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

It Was Bribery!

With the adjournment of congress this week, the investigation of the J. P. Morgan private banking interests dies. According to announcement, it rests or recesses only for the summer months but it is the private opinion of the writer that it will never be revived. When Pecora began his work for the committee, no high administration official had any idea that it was to become personal or embarrassing. The idea underlying the authorization to proceed with the interrogation of the House of Morgan was to learn just how private financial institutions were managed with the idea that from the information gained, reform measures might be introduced and passed by congress. It started harmlessly enough. Quite in the same manner that countless other investigations have begun. But it got out of hand.

The attempt to stop the committee altogether failed, and the effort to limit the crusading Pecora met with defeat. Public sentiment was aroused and wise politicians in Washington knew that to squelch either Pecora or the committee as a whole would be disasterous to Democratic prestige. The investigation revealed a member of Roosevelt's cabinet on the "preferred" list of the international bankers. His ambassador at large, Norman Davis, also was marked with the same stick. United States senators, men high in the political and social world found their hands palsied by the monied favors of the House of Morgan.

To assume that men who accepted the opportunity to make sure and easy money by the grace of J. P. Morgan accepted no bribe is ridiculous. If the House of Morgan expected nothing from these men on the "preferred" list, why did they sell stock to them far under the market value and Active in dramatics and art, Green has done designing while at Columbia, as well as taken a deep interest in the art world of New York City. He has managed several dramatic productions at the International House during his stay there.

Green writes that the commencement at Columbia was of particular interest this year, honorary degrees being conferred upon such notable people as David P. Barrow, of the University of California; Samuel Seabury, and many others.

GEORGE COLEY VISITS NILES

George Coley, of Niles, returned early last week from a trip to Seattle. He remained a few days at his home here, then left for a trip via Panama to th east coast. He has a berth on the Sidney Hauptman, MacCormick Line freighter. Coley remarked to his friends that the sea-faring life was beginning to pall on him.

TOYON BRANCH HAS FINAL MEETING OF SUMMER

An attractive garden luncheon at the home of Mrs. James R. Whipple, at Niles, marked the closing meeting of the Toyon branch of the Children's Hospital of Alameda County, Monday. The group adjourned for the summer months with plans yet to be made for the opening meeting next fall. There were twenty-three members present.

Mrs. Frederick M. Maar was guest of honor.

Mrs. Charles Shinn gave a short resume of the work of The King's Daughters in this region. The organization was formed here many years ago by Edward Everett Hale. Mrs. T. N. Alexander, of Alameda, augmented the remarks of Mrs. Shinn. She told of the King's Daughters as a statewide unit.

The hostess, Mrs. James R. Whipple, was assisted in receiving the guests by the four newest members of the branch—Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Margaret Lowrie, Miss Lorraine Smith and Miss Elizabth Shinn.

Discussion of the rummage sale conducted by the branch two weeks ago revealed that $51.35 had been realized in the three sale days.

MRS. COURVOISIER RETURNS

Mrs. Desiree Courvoisier has returned to Niles, to make her home here again. For the past five years she has lived in Oakland. All of her old friends are delighted to hear of her return.

TAXPAYERS URGED TO ATTEND MASS MEETING MONDAY AT W. U. H. S.

RALPH V. RICHMOND ON STATE FAIR COMMITTEE

Alameda county will participate in the 1933 California State Fair at Sacramento, according to an announcement by Paul Goldsmith, chairman of the Alameda county development commission, Oakland.

Serving on the exhibit committee are Supervisor Ralph V. Richmond, Niles, representing Washington township; N. W. Armstrong, San Leandro, secretary of the development commission; John U. Calkins, Jr., Berkeley, and James C. Foegarty, Alameda. The committee visied Sacramento last Saturday and secured space for the Alameda county display in the main horticultural building at the fair grounds.

More than forty counties will display their products at the 1933 fair, according to Secretary Paine of the fair board.

Alameda county will feature floriculture, horticulture and clay products, according to Supervisor Richmond. Last year the entries from Washington township captured prizes in every class, including potatoes, celery, cauliflower, tomatoes and cut flowers.

LEGIONAIRES SEE DEDICATION OF BUILDING

Members of the Washington Township Post American Legion, and the Lades' Auxiliary, Sunday went to Yountville, Napa county, to participate in the dedication ceremonies of a new building at the veterans' hospital there.

Governor James Rolph, Jr., delivered the dedication address. His speech was supplemented by a short talk by Mrs. Lorena Good, department auxiliary president.

The day's entertainment was rounded out with a barbecue at noon, drill team performances, and a dance. There were various amusements including a ball game between the several legion posts. Among those who attended the dedication from Niles were: Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Swartz, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vieux, Mr. and Mrs. Geor. Smith, Jack Vieux, Dale Carruthers, Frank X. Viet, Mr. and Mrs. P. Bertolotti, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Norby and Miss Winifred Azevedo.

CHAMPION TRIAL TOMORROW AT COURTHOUSE

Charles Champion, Niles youth charged with battery will face trial for th second time on the same change tomorrow afternoon at 1:30, at the Niles courthouse. Jury for the first trial several weeks ago was unable to reach a verdict after several hours of debate, and was dismissed. Tomorrow's trial was set two weeks ago by Judge J. A. Silva.

Champion was arraigned two months ago on charges brought by Frank Costa, waiter, who holds the was attacked by Champion in a Niles restaurant. Champion peaded not guity to the charges and demanded a jury trial.

Committee Heads Report On Work Up To Date

All taxpayers of Washington township are urged to attend the mass meeting Monday night at the Washington Union high school to hear reports of the various committees of the Washington Township Taxpayers' League, and to listen to a discussion of the Riley-Stewart plan, which will appear on the June 27 ballot as proposal No. 1.

According to George Roeding Jr., Tax League president, the speaker of the evening will be a man eminent in the affairs of the state. There has been some effort made to secure former-governor C. C. Young to address the meet, but his presence is not yet an assured fact.

Chairmen of the Tax League commiteees will give reports of the committee work on phases of pertinent interest to the taxpayers of the township. Otto Hirsch will report on the findings of the Welfare committee, in relation to welfare work in southern Alameda county. Mrs. Stevenson will report on the salaries and expenditures of the several township schools. Will Patterson, treasurer of the League, will make a statement of expenditures to date for the organization. George Roeding, Jr., president of the organization, will tell of developments arising from meetings with the assessor and the board of Supervisors.

Supervisor Ralph V. Richmond is to be asked to attend the meese to tell of any plans of the Supervisorial Board to effect economies in the county government.

Tax League members are asked to encourage everyone to attend the meet, which will be of vital interest to all tax payers in this district.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:00 p. m. Monday night, June 19th, at the auditorium of the Washington Union high school.

EARL WARREN WILL BE SHRINE CLUB SPEAKER

Ezra W. Decoto, former district attorney of Alameda county, will officiate as master of ceremonies at the banquet of the Southern Alameda County Shrine Club tomorrow night at the Hotel Gregory. Judge Ralph V. Richmond, of Niles, vice president of the club, has been appointed chairman of arrangements for the affair. Richmond announces that among the guests will be Earl Warren, illustrious potentate of Aahmes temple, Oakland; Dr. John L. Greshman, Oakland city councilman, and Hans Vejby, of Hayward, founder and first president of the club. Other guests will come from Livermore, Sunol, Pleasanton, Newark, Centerville, Warm Springs, Mission San Jose, Irvington, Hayward, San Leandro and San Lorenzo.

Serving on the committee with Chairman Richmond are R. E. Albertsen, P. C. Hansen, Clarence E. Martenstein, Ralph Emerson and C. M. Christensen.

Henriettia Woods, this year's graduate of the Amador Valley Union High school, Pleasanton, was in Niles Monday a guest of the Township Register force. Miss Woods is Dublin correspondent for the Peasanton Times, and on several occasions has temporarily held down the reporting job on Mr. Parks' paper in Pleasanton.

OWEN SWAINSON TO TAKE EASTERN TRIP

Combining business with pleasure, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Swainson, beauty parlor experts, accompanied by Miss Anna Kling, will leave Monday on a three month's trip to the eastern coast, planning to touch at several large cities before they return.

They will take the same route as they took on their trip last year, when they covered 10,000 miles before returning to California. Stopping first at Boston, they will proceed to New York for a stay of a week or so, after which they will drive to Chicago, where Mrs. Swainson will demonstrate hair-dressing methods at the Hair Dressers' convention to be held at the Hotel Sherman in that city. Mrs. Swainson earned the honor of demonstrating at this convention by her winning of a national contest under the auspices of a large beauty supplies firm. Beauty experts from all over the world will attend the convention, which is connected with the World's Fair Beauty show.

During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Swainson, the Swainson Beauty Salon will be under the competent management of Miss Myrtle Taylor.

AUNT ELSIE CLUB PLANS CANYON PICNIC

Members of the Niles Aunt Elsie Club met at the Niles Grammar school last Friday afternoon, for the last meet of the summer. A vaudeville show, put on and managed entirely by the children, was the feature of the afternoon. Twenty-five new members, taken on Friday swelled the membership to a new total of 112 children.

June Farrington, 11, was recently honored by the printing of her short story by the Oakland Tribune. Several children of the local chapter of the club have had their literary attiempts on the Aunt Elsie page of the Tribune.

In lieu of the regular meet next month, a picnic will be held on July 14 for the children, in Niles Canyon, according to Mrs. Nell F. Myers "Aunt Nan" to the local group. There will be games, contests, swimming and other forms of diversion for the members. Prizes will be given to contest winners. One hundred and ten children are expected to enjoy the day. Mrs. Myers will be assisted by several of the mothers.

ALAMEDA ELKS TO HAVE PICNIC SUNDAY

More than one hundred gate prizes are expected to be distributed next Sunday at the Alameda Elks Family Picnic to be held at Paradise Park in Mission San Jose next Sunday.

With the idea of making the affair outstanding in the history of the fraternity, no effort or expense has been spared to make it a huge success.

According to Harvey Braun, Washington township member of the general committee, an exceptionally ambitious program of events has been scheduled for the entertainment of the crowd of young and old folks including a ladies burro race for which a special trophy has been donated by Harry M. Rowell, prominent cattle and rodeo man.

CANYON BARBECUE IS HELD BY STORE EMPLOYEES

The personnel of four MacMarr stores: Niles, Centerville, Pleasanton and Livermore took advantage of the balmy evenings this week, and staged a barbacue and get together last night at Lakeside Park, in Niles Canyon. Meeting at the park at about 7:00 p. m., the picnickers first had a swim, then gatherer about the barbecue pit to watch the expert manipulations of Gladford Viery. Niles MacMarr manager and chef for the occasion. The main course consisted of steaks, very large and tender steaks, served with generous gobs of beans, Spanih style. For the final course, everyone brought some sort of cake or dessert, pooling the layout in a central dessert heap, as it were. The familiar brown glass containers were carried about by their necks during the early stages of the barbecue.

Viery said this morning that the affair was a tremendous success, and that similar get-togethers may be planned in the future.

STREET NAMES IN CENTERVILLE ACCEPTED

A joint committee of the Centerville Lions Club and the Centerville Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday of last week went before the planning commission of Alameda county, and submitted the new Centerville street names for the approval of that body. The names were accepted as they were presented, with the exception of Main. The chairman of the planning commission suggested that the name of the Centerville main street be only tentatively applied, at the present time, awaiting a joint meet of the Santa Clara and Alameda county boards of supervisors to decide on a single name to be given the road from San Lorenzo Junction to San Jose. It is thought at this time that the name ultimately selected will be San Jose road. According to Frank Madruga, Centerville Lion, the name was suggested with the purpose of eliminating the confusing medley of names now applied to the road. It is thought that the density of the tourist traffic on the road in question is sufficient to necessitate the removal of all ambiguity of names. For the time being, Mr. Madruga, said, the signs erected by the Lions club will remain standing. When the final name is selected, signs will be replaced.

The name of School street will remain undecided until fixing of its name by the board of supervisors, Madruga said. The latter street has given rise to much dispute in the selection of a suitable label.

Those who took the names before the Planning Commission were: Judge Allen G. Norris, Frank Madruga and M. Santos.

TYPEWRITERS BEAT HODGKINS FORDS 7-3 SUNDAY

Still unable to shake off their hoodoo, the Hodgkins Fords went down Sunday to a 7 to 3 defeat at the hands of the Oakland Typewriters, in a furious ball game at the Washington Union High school diamond. Not bunching their hits to score more than three runs Fords were unable to overcome a five-run lead grabbed off in the first inning by the Typewriters. Spud Dagermark hurled his usual fine game of ball, allowing the opponents no hits after the fourth inning. He struck out six men and walked one, allowing the Typewriters twelve bingles. The squeezing of twelve hits into four innings, gave the Typewriters the contest.

Perry of the Fords shared hitting honors of the day wth Hollerson, Typewriter pitcher. Both found the seed three times out of four tries. Ferry and Fontes, of the Fords, each hit safely twice. Fontes turning in a homer as one of his hits. Unfortunately no one was on base at the time. Jesse Jacinto, injured in the game two weeks ago was back at his job behind the plate. He was relieved in the closing innings by Rose.

Ford box score:

	A.B.	R	L.B.
Amaral, center field	1	0	0
Rose, catch	1	0	0
Jacinto, catch	2	1	1
Ferry, left field	4	1	2
Dutra, short stop	4	0	0
Fontes, thrid base	4	1	2
Lebon, second base	4	0	1
Perry, right field	4	0	3
Mackey, first base	4	0	1

King, Trustees, and Father Reuben Bray, Chaplain.

Mrs. George Emerson will entertain the Evening Card club at a dinner and bridge party at her home on Saturday night.

CENTERVILLE MAN, RESIDENT HERE 65 YEARS, SUCCUMBS

John Silva Rose, Eighty Years Old, Dies Quietly Sunday

Those who have lived in Washington township for many years were saddend to hear of the death of John Silva Rose, 80-year-old Centerville man who lived in this region for sixty-five years. Ill for just a few days, Rose passed away quietly at his home Sunday.

Born in the Azore Islands in 1853 Rose came to this locality in 1868 as a boy of fifteen years. Since that time he had lived continuously in Centerville.

He was the husband of the late Anna S. Rose. He is survived by three sons, John S. Rose, Jr., Joseph S., and Lewis S. Rose. He was a brother of Manuel, Charles and Domingo Cunha.

Funeral services were yesterday from the Chapel of Palms, at 8:45 a. m. A requiem high mass was said at the Holy Ghost church, Centerville, at 9:00 a. m. Interment followed at the Holy Ghost cemetery.

K. OF C. COUNCILS MAP FIGHT FOR SCHOOLS

James Collins, of Newark, head of the Centerville Knights of Columbus, last Friday night attended a meeting at the Oakland council meeting hall, at which east bay committees met with Archbishop Mitty to discuss proposition No. 4 of the coming ballot. The meeting was to discover in what ways the passage of the bill will be of benefit to the private non-profit schools, which at the present time are being heavily taxed. Passage of the bill, according to Ernest Pimentel, member of the Centerville Knights of Columbus, will allow the private schools to continue, thus removing the excess students from the load of the public schools.

The ruin of the private schools by heavy taxation during these difficult times, Pimentel said, would make it necessary for the public schools to absorb large number of students now at private non-profit institutions, thus increasing the public school tax burden.

Loan Fund Committee Seeks Fund Increase

At a meeting of the Washingon High School Scholarship fund committee, held at the home of Mrs. E. M. Wright in Centerville, Monday night, it was decided to seek means and channels of increasing the fund to such a point that interest from the principal will be of a sufficient amount to constitute loans to Washington Union High School graduates in persuit of a higher education. At the present time the loan fund amounts to about $850, according to Ernest Pimentel, committee member.

Other members of the fund committee are: H. F. Harrold, chairman; Mrs. J. R. Whipple, and Mrs. E. M. Wright.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL PLAY EVOKES PRAISE

Parents, as well as all others, who saw the Centeaville Grammar school graduation play "Chonita," were greatly impressed wih the exremely good work done by those students who participated in it. Miss Inez Silva, Miss Sybil Botelho and Miss Josephine Herbert are all dserving of much praise in coaching and managing an outstanding performace.

Of particular note, was the finale to the first act, which was a chorus sung in four parts. The children rendered music which may have been thought far beyond their capacities, in a manner that woud have done justice to a high school group.

CENTERVILLE MAN DENIED HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

Denied a writ of habeas corpus, through which he hoped to avoid imprisonment for a debt under a seventy-five-year old state statute, Patrick Waldron, of Centerville, was last Thursday instructed that proceedings must be brought in Alameda county counts. Waldron petitioned the writ in San Francisco county. Waldron is not under confinement at this time, but he is not free in a legal sense.

Waldron was imprisoned by his cousin, Austin Waldron, who sought to collect $5,000 on an old judgment. The old statute was invoked when civil action was begun in the superior court of Judge James G. Quinn.

FIRE DRILL IS HELD AT AMADOR HIGH

A fire drill was held at the Amador Valley high school last Wednesday, conducted by the Mayor, who is also fire chief, and Crawford Letham, assistant fire chief. The test was made for the purpose of trying out the school fire equipment.

The school building was cleared of students in forty-five seconds.

Among those who assisted in the fire drill were T. H. Silver and Charles Graham.

NEW LION OFFICERS TAKE OFFICE AT TUESDAY MEET

Lions Club officers for the coming year were elected and installed at the Tuesday night meeting of the club at the Gregory Hotel, Centerville. The Hayward Lions Club performed the installation ceremonies. New Lion officers are: M. Santos, president; Judge Allen G. Norris, vice-president; Harry Elsey, Lion Tamer; Joe Jason, Tail Twister; Loren Merriott, secretary, and the Rev. MrEhenny, as honorary chaplain.

Frank Madruga, former president of the Lions, expressed his gratitude to the members for such unified and willing cooperation in all of the projects the club undertook during the past year.

People of the township, it is said, next year will watch with interest the continuation of the Lions' active policies, out of which come tangible good to the town of Centerville and the township at large.

Frank and Robert Salz drove to San Francisco Tuesday morning.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price.

Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different — he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

CAMP FIRE MOTHERS DISCUSS CAMP PLANS

The Camp Fire Mothers' club met at the home of Mrs. Roland Bendel on Monday night to discuss plans for the attendance at the summer camp at Big Basin this year. Mrs. J. E. Townsend, Camp Fire guardian, spoke on the regulations of the camp, and told of the qualifications and equipment necessary to spend a vacation there. Date for the opening of the camp was tentatively set or July 30, at which time the minimum of seventeen girls will leave Niles for a stay at Big Basin. Mrs. Townsend, however, expects that the attendance this year will be greater than that of previous years. She would like to have about twenty-five girls at the camp.

A financial report of the Mothers' club card party, which was held a few weeks ago at the Ellsworth home, proved that the affair was more successful than had been expected. A considerable sum was raised which will be evenly divided between the girls who will attend the camp, to help defray individual expenses for the stay there.

Girls of all ages, ranging from the youngest to the older ones, will be eligible to attend camp.

SECONDARY ROADS TAKEN OVER BY STATE

NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

then mail them a check for the difference between the price "paid" and the then market value? No money actually changed hands except the "profit" mailed to the "preferred" list of customers—men who were prominent in public affairs or who the the financial institution thought might possibly become so.

It was bribery!

Of course nothing will be done about it. No criminal prosecution will follow. It was bribery, we repeat, but within the law. Large interests have good lawyers, and it is the business of good lawyers to circumvent the law—do legally, what if attempted by an individual without legal counsel, would land him in jail. The arm of the law is long it is said, but it reaches out only for the ordinary offender. It cannot reach across to Greece and bring back the thief, Insull. It cannot even reach to Wall Street to jail or fine tax evaders. None of the partners of Morgan nor Morgan himself, paid income taxes in 1930, 1931 or 1932. Blandly Morgan admitted that he manipulated his tax return to evade a "profit." His partners did the same. The immensely rich have all, apparently, been doing likewise. But they were "within the law," we are told. Wonder if you or we would have been within the law should we have sold our business to our wife or employee at a loss just before the end of the tax year, and established a loss, and then at the beginning of the new year "bought" it back? No, we would not have been within the law and the revenue department would have either fined or jailed us in short order.

It is these things that make thinking men and women furious—furious that they can do nothing, accomplish nothing—that the big criminals get away with murder and robbery—and there is one law for just the average man, another for big interests.

Woodin remains in the cabinet, Davis is in Europe. The President expresses confidence in the treasury department. Washington moves along in the even tenor of its way. The House of Morgan resumes the routine of its daily trading in Wall Street, and the scales in the hands of the Goddess of Justice sag preceptibly on the side of stocks and bonds, and bars of gold.

Next to the Biggest Pug In Pugdom

See the conquering hero comes!

It will be a great day for Livermore when Max, the butcher boy, returns to receive the plaudits of the home town.

Nothing succeeds like success. It does not really matter what you do—if you do it better than anyone else the world is yours!

Take Scarface Al Capone, for instance. He was the stellar gangster of the age. What a fuss was made over the hoodlum. Not by hoodlums, but by very sensible people, very decent people. An individual may be law abiding, he may be honest, moral, upright. But way down in his subconcious nature he wants to be otherwise. When some one defies all moral codes, breaks the laws of the land, outrages public opinion, and gets away with it, he is a hero to the subsconcious self within us that longs to break all man and God made laws, if we only could, for the thrill of the thing. That accounts for the applause that men of low mental and moral order receive almost universally if perchance they outdo every other brute and criminal talked about in the papers.

When Baer comes back to California, it is a foregone conclusion that business men of high order and unimpeachable moral and business integrity will sit around the table with the mauler, whose star in the pugalistic world is now ascending, and laud him to the very skies. A few years ago these same men looked at the lad as a bum about town. He has not changed. He has just gotten to be the most successful beat-up mug in pugdom. The business of prize fighting is the business of brutes. It is the lowest order of sports, if by any stretch of imagination it may be called a sport. Men who make it a profession are true to their calling. It brutalizes every decent instinct with which nature may have at birth endowed them. Their exhibitions seem to satisfy that savage instinct that lies so close under the thin veneer of skin that we call civilization. It re-echoes the howl of the Romans in the arena for more ghastly exhibitions of blood and cruelty. Seeing the coarse display of brutality, the individual throws off the restraints of centuries and reincarnates himself the monster of prehistoric times.

So when Max returns to Livermore there will be a grand parade, and a big banquet in his honor. There is a difference, you see, in being a small town pug and a mug who has fought and won in Yankee Stadium.

APRICOT GROWERS DISCUSS FEDERAL AID PROSPECTS

Santa Clara Valley apricot growers gathered last night at the San Jose Chamber of Commerce to discuss the stabilization of prices for canning for the coming season.

The meet was held under the auspices of the California Canning Apricot producers, headed by A. Chargin, Jr.

It was said at the meet that the stabilization of canning apricot prices is absolutely necessary before the producers can take advantage of the new farm relief act provided by the federal government.

There was also discussed the provision being sought to be added to the federal pure food act which limits the moisture content of processed fruit to a lower degree than heretofore. and likewise places greater limitation in the amount of dirt in culls. Several Niles growers drove to San Jose to attend the meet.

Correspondent Sees Office First Time in Three Years

An institution of such large and diverse extensions in Washington township, that some of its regular representatives do not see the inside of the central offices for years at a time, the Township Register Wednesday was pleased to have a visit from Miss Irma Leal, of Warm Springs, who, for three years has been the Register correspondent at that town and never once before ventured into the inner sanctum from which all blessings flow. Miss Leal, who was accompanied by her mother, said that in the future her calls to the main office would be more frquent.

IRRIGATION BELT ON SHINN RANCH STOLEN SUNDAY

Climaxing several attempts at sabotage to pumping equipment on the Shinn ranch, the belt of the plant behind the Niles Grammar school was stolen last weekend. The theft is the worst of a series of depredations committed within the last year. Some time ago the belt at the Shinn pump-house a the end of second street was slashed into several sections with a sharp instrument.

According to Walter Kempton, employee on the Shinn place, the theft was discovered Monday morning. He thinks the belt was taken either by itinerants, who recognized its sale value, or by local miscreants bent on mischief. Constable O. E. Ebright was informed of he theft.

NORMAL CHERRY MARKET EXPECTED FOR THIS SEASON

According to Vincent Margarita and Joseph Allegretti, cherry buyers who are handling the large Shinn crop, the market for most grades so far this season has been weak. Tartarians, from the beginning of the season up to the present time have brought a slightly lower price than last year. The Los Angeles market, which usually absorbs large quanities of the early cherries from the local orchards, does not offer, at the present time, a price that will cover the costs of picking and shipping.

Royal Annes, not coming up to pre-season expecations, are bringing 4c a pound for the better grades, and 2c for the inferior ones. The New York market has continued stronger than that of the west coast, but it is thought that it will weaken as the season progresses. Early Bings, evidently the preferred fruit in the east, are bringing 12c in New York at present.

Pleasanton Queen Is Selected for July Celebration

Beautiful little Miss Beverly Rosa, 16 year old daughter of Mrs. Mabel Rosa, has been selected by the Women's Improvement club to reign over this year's Fourth of July celebration as the Goddess of Liberty.

A striking blonde, Miss Rosa is one of ehe most popular of the younger set in Pleasanton. Gracious and demure, she will be an ideal Goddess for the celebration.

Having lived here all her life, the young lady is well known throughout this section. She is a junior at the Amador Valley high school, and a graduate of the Pleasanton grammar school.

Selected by the ladies of the Improvement club, that organization will prepare the float on which she will ride. The committee from the Improvement club which is working out the details of the float, is headed by Mrs. Charles Graham. The club is noted for its ability to do things right, and it is a foregone conclusion that the Goddess will be in an enviable position throughout the fete.

Her coronation will take place at the Booster Dance which will be held on the night of July 1.

From that time on she will reign supreme throughout the celebration.

The Booster dance promises to be the most colorful social event of the year, and word has been received from many out of town luminaries that they will be on hand to give the fete a big send-off.

The selection of Miss Rosa has met with instant approval, and it is with even more vigor than ever that the committees are getting into action.

Man Killed At Rail Crossing at Pleasanton

Elmer B. Edelmann, of San Francisco was instantly killed last Thursday morning when the truck he was driving was hit by the 8:20 Southern Pacific train at the Kaiser gravel pit crossing, about one mile from Pleasanton on the Pleasanton-Livermore highway.

Edelman has been employed in the hauling of gravel for the Hetch Hetchy company, and was making the turn into the plant and evidently did not see the approaching train in time to stop. He was thrown from the truck onto the cowcatcher of the train.

According to reports from a doctor who examined the body, no bones were broken, nor did he have a fractured skull. Death was attributed to congestion on the brain.

The truck was completely demolished. Deputy Coroner Charles Graham, of Pleasanton, was called to investigate the accident.

Ontario's First Seaport Founded 300 Years Ago

Ontario's first seaport was founded 300 years ago by Capt. Thomas James on the shores of the bay that now bears his name.

In the winter of 1631-32 Captain James established himself at the mouth of the Moose river, at the southern extremity of the bay, calling the place Moosonee. Some 40 years later the Hudson's Bay company was formed, and the fort of Moose Factory was established on Mission island, across the river.

The new fort, however, was soon lost to the French, who took it without a struggle with a small force led by De Troyes in 1686. As the English garrison believed the fort practically impregnable, they had neglected even to post guards.

Two French soldiers succeeded, consequently, in scaling the palisades under cover of darkness and opened the gates. The old fort has remained unchanged in the last 100 years. The factor's house is over 180 years old, while the forge, still intact, was built nearly 200 years ago.

The same 15-pound guns which were used so unsuccessfully in the fight against De Troyes' expedition in 1686 are still fired every year when the ice goes out. The blacksmith shop is believed to be the oldest building in Ontario.

The little church at Moose Factory has holes bored in the floor for use in case of floods. In dry seasons these holes are plugged, but when in times of flood the water rises sufficiently to enter the church the plugs are pulled out so that the building will not drift away.—National Revenue Review of Canada.

Rickets, Disease Known to Medicine for Years

That the light and heat of the sun direct or indirectly provide the basis of all life has been appreciated by mankind for countless ages.

With the development of modern science, man's intuitive appreciation of the sun has been validated by important discoveries.

Thus it was early shown that plants take nonliving substances and with the aid of sunlight build out of them living or organic compounds upon which all animals ultimately depend for their food.

More recently, that is, during the last ten or twelve years, it has been further shown that the sun's radiations have a direct and specific effect on the nutrition of animals and humans.

This effect is seen in the promotion of growth and development, as well as on the negative side, of certain disease conditions.

The recent discoveries of the effects of the sun upon nutrition center about the disease rickets.

Rickets is a disease with which medicine has been acquainted for more than a century. It has been recognized as a condition affecting the utilization of mineral substances by the body.

More specifically, there is a disturbance during the period of development in what is technically known as the calcification of the bony tissues.

The skeletal frame of the child and young animal is not bony in character, but cartilaginous. As the child or animal develops, the cartilage disappears and in its place bone is developed.

A significant portion of bone structure is made out of calcium and phosphorus. In rickets there is a failure in the deposition of calcium in the skeletal tissue.

This, however, is not due to a lack of calcium. It is due, rather, to the lack of some essential element, now designated as vitamin D, which in nature is produced by the sun on certain chemical substances. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Dolls Once Objects of Fear; to Ward Off Evil

Dolls, now toys for little girls, once were objects of fear or hate. They figured in the strange rites of black magic, and were specially cherished by women.

They were used to terrify and cast spells upon rivals, enemies or unfortunate husbands. After certain "magical" ceremonies, it was thought that whatever was then done to the dolls would be felt by the man or woman they resembled. Sometimes the doll was placed before a fire and slowly allowed to melt. As it melted, the bewitched person was supposed to die of fear.

According to Prof. Max von Bohen, a distinguished German scholar, during the later Stone age every family needed these idols to keep off evil, and manufacturing them became an industry. During excavations archeologists have found doll-sized idols made from all sorts of material, from stone to terra cotta, tin, and bronze. Some were cut out of sheet-tin, and looked much like modern tin soldiers.

In early Asia and Egypt the tombs of important people were filled with quite a population of doll figures. These acted as substitutes for the usual wholesale human sacrifices. In other places, it was the custom for a bride to sacrifice her dolls to the goddess Diana just before the wedding. — Philadelphia Record

Our Post Service Dates From February 17, 1691

The beginning of the American post proper dates from the signing of a patent vesting Thomas Neale with postal jurisdiction, February 17, 1691. On April 4, the same year, Neale and the royal postmaster general appointed Andrew Hamilton postmaster general of America. He was required to establish an intercolonial post. He visited all the colonies and secured from all except Virginia pledges of co-operation. The service began May 1, 1693, and consisted of weekly posts from Portsmouth, N. H., to Boston, Saybrook, New York, Philadelphia, Maryland and Virginia, five riders to cover each of the five stages twice each week. Hamilton died in 1703 and was succeeded by his son, John Hamilton. From 1707 to the outbreak of the Revolution the general post office in London controlled the system in America. Mail moved weekly between Boston and Maine in 1711 and between New York and Williamsburg, Va., in 1717. There was a fortnightly service between Philadelphia and Annapolis in 1727.

A new chapter was opened with the appointment of Benjamin Franklin as deputy postmaster in America, 1737. Sixteen years later he was named postmaster general with Col. William Hunter. The printer-philosopher made a tour of all the post offices in his jurisdiction, omitting only Charleston. Difficulties with Governor Hutchinson of Massachusetts in 1774 resulted in his dismissal. But the system which he had developed survived him, and when the Continental post office department was created, with headquarters at Philadelphia, he was elected postmaster general and resumed charge, July 26, 1775.

The Continental congress authorized the establishment of a line of posts between New Hampshire and Georgia "and to such other places as congress might direct." Rates of postage, fixed by law, were: Single letters, under 60 miles, 7.4; 60 to 100 miles, 11.1 cents; 100 to 200 miles, 14.8 cents; and 3.4 cents additional for each 100 miles.

Needle History

The earliest needles had no holes in them, and were undoubtedly used more as pins or as awls, to make holes through which the long underground roots of plants or bindweed and leather thongs were passed by hand to serve the purpose of thread. These earliest needles were made of stone, bone or ivory. When the advantage of piercing a hole through the blunt end of these implements was discovered, the first real needle was made. During the Bronze age of history, metal needles came into being and further civilization gradually has resulted in the development of over 250 varieties of needles for sewing alone.

"Tailors of Tooley Street"

Tooley street is a street in Southwark, London, near London bridge. The story runs that at some period of political excitement in the early part of the last century in England, three tailors of that street, issued a manifesto, beginning "We, the people of England." It is generally supposed that these tailors were mythical creations of George Canning (some say Daniel O'Connell) during the agitation for the removal of Catholic disabilities. The Slang dictionary defines "Tooley Street tailor" as a self-conceited, vain-glorious man, the three tailors of Tooley street being said to have immortalized themselves by preparing a petition for parliament, and some say, presenting it, with only their own signatures thereto, which commenced, "We, the people of England."

Curious Flower

One of the most curious flowers in the world is a kind of convolvulus which is common in Bermuda. The strange thing about this blossom is that it changes color as the hours of the day pass. Soon after sunrise the flower opens and it is then a lovely rose-pink. As time passes the bloom takes on a mauve shade until by noon it is a rich blue. In the afternoon the blue becomes fainter and fainter until when darkness comes this astonishing blossom is quite white. Just before midnight the flower fades, and it is a mass of crumpled petals by the morning.

Cat on City's Pay Roll Feels Mayor's Budget Ax

Boston.—Folio, the Boston public library's official cat, for which $50 is appropriated annually for liver, milk and salmon, has had milk taken from the bill of fare and may be out of a job, if Mayor J. M. Curley's pencil cuts much deeper into the budget. Public buildings have been deprived of ice because of the depression, and fresh milk has become out of the question. Folio has cleared the library of mice and does only patrol duty nowadays.

I DO NOT KNOW

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I DO not know I envy so the wisdom of the wise
Who have by heart the rules of art. compare and criticize,
Some things, no doubt, are wrong about a ballad or a rose,
But I am glad the faults they had I'm not the one who knows.

I'm not so sure that things endure because of perfect line
Or perfect tone—that these alone have helped this heart of mine,
Perhaps the things a shepherd sings are faulty songs at best,
And yet some word of his has stirred an answer in my breast.

I'm not the one, his singing done, to say if poor or well
He sang his lay this summer's day—because I cannot tell.
I know a note brought to my throat a sigh, mist to my eyes—
I do not know I envy so the wisdom of the wise.

Mother's Cook Book

VEGETABLES

AS THERE are so many people nowadays who eat little or no meat, one may find what is called the "vegetable plate" in most restaurants which serve three to five different kinds, well seasoned and cooked, and this supplies a good main dish. More and more vegetables is what our bodies need to give them the right kind of roughage, as well as the vitamins and minerals so important to health.

Creamed Celery.

Take the coarser stalks which are not perfect enough to serve au natural, cook in a very little water and serve with butter sauce, or with a rich, white sauce, adding grated cheese for variety. A few of the white tender leaves may be served scattered over the dish for garnish if desired.

Carrots in Parsley Butter.

Take eight or ten carrots, wash and scrape, cut into dice or into slices. Cook in a small quantity of boiling water lightly salted, until tender. Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one to two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one tablespoonful of finely minced parsley. Pour over the carrots and serve hot.

Carrots and Apples.

Take six carrots and six apples (the tart kind), cut carrots into shoestrings and core the unpeeled apples; cut into one-fourth-inch slices. Place a layer of apples in a hot frying pan with two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, cover with the carrots, season with a tablespoonful of sugar, salt and cayenne to taste. Cook, turning when browned to the other side. Serve on a platter with a layer of each, so that the layers may be lifted together.

Dandelion Greens.

Wash greens, cut fine with scissors. Place four tablespoonfuls of bacon fat in a frying pan, add one-fourth cupful of mild vinegar and a teaspoonful of salt. Cover after dropping in the drained greens, when wilted serve at once.

Insomnia Records

The case of Cornelius Szekely, who, following a wound in the head inflicted 16 years ago, lost the power to sleep, and who died in Budapest after remaining awake 140,160 hours, is remarkable; but it is not unique. Two years ago it was revealed that a man living at Newcastle-on-Tyne had not slept for 20 years as a result of a cycling accident; and about the same time details were published concerning a Hungarian civil servant who had not closed his eyes in sleep since a Russian bullet struck his head in 1915.

Dead Sea Fruit

Dead sea fruit, which turns to ashes in the mouth, is not a mere legend. It grows on a tree about 15 feet high, is a bright yellow color, and is about the size of an apple. It looks very luscious, but is often attacked by a large black and yellow cricket so that the whole of the interior becomes dust although the skin remains unharmed. Thus, when it is picked it turns to tasteless powder.

Baldness and Badness

The worst type of habitual criminal is generally bald, according to the chief physician of the Fukuoka prison, Tokyo, who recently completed an extensive study of 1,521 criminals occupying ten years. In the course of that work he found nine typical habitual criminals. They had from 16 to 29 criminal convictions, and had spent from 20 to 30 years in prison. They were all bald.

Jefferson Wasted Many Words in Long Letters

Thomas Jefferson was a great letter writer. It is said that he wrote thousands of letters every year. And of course they had to be very formal. People in those days were serious-minded and they did not descend to familiarities. Jefferson was himself a man of plain habits and tastes, as we know, but he felt that he had to comply with the fashions in letter writing which the high-hat people of that day set.

Here, for instance, observes a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, is the way he closed one letter: "Repeating to you my sincere sense of your goodness to me, and my wishes to prove it on every occasion, adding my sincere prayer that Heaven may bless you with many years of life and health, I pray you to accept here the homage of those sentiments of respect and attachment with which I have the honor to be your most obedient and humble servant."

They had no typewriters in those days. All letters, as well as writings of every sort, had to be done laboriously in long-hand, and with quill pens. Try to imagine what people of today would say—especially the younger generation—if they were told they would have to write their letters by hand and model them after the style of Jefferson's time!

Hearing Through Skull, Scheme to Assist Deaf

It has been figured that in the United States there are about 14,000,000 persons who have defective hearing. One-third of these are so seriously affected that they are unable to enjoy talkies or similar entertainment. Many devices have been made to help these unfortunate persons, and as a rule they operate on the interior of the impaired ear. In some cases they are successful, but many are not given relief in this way. Another invention works on an entirely new principle. The sounds are conducted through the bone structures of the head. The outfit consists of a transmitter which may be carried concealed in the clothing, a battery and an oscillator. The latter may be worn on a headband or mounted on a convenient handle for occasional use when it is held in contact with the mastoid bone back of the ear. Tests of this device have proved generally very satisfactory, but in one case in five the bone structure is non-conductive so that little or no benefit is derived.

Boldest American Pirate

Probably the most daring American pirate was a man named Teach. Some records say his name was Saxon Teach, others Edward Teach. His piratical name was Blackbeard. He lived in the early Eighteenth century and cruised in the Atlantic, and especially around the West Indies. He was exceptionally fierce and took many prizes. His principal daring, however, consisted in the fact that about half of the time he spent ashore, where he passed as a prosperous planter. He became a member of the governor's council in his home colony, North Carolina. Living highly respected in that community, he would periodically disappear, giving out that he was away on business. On these trips he joined his pirate ship and commanded it on its raids on commerce. He was finally taken and hanged with his crew.

Windows Were Treasures

When Edward I brought back his bride from Spain, his father, Henry III, was so delighted that he made the youthful couple a present of a house furnished with glazed windows, which was heralded throughout merry England as a wonderful gift. Those who later had windows regarded them as treasures and the story is told that in the reign of Elizabeth, the duke of Northumberland, on leaving his estate, was warned by his steward that he had better order the windows taken out of his house and stored in safekeeping until his return.

Refers to Counting Time

The word "ides" refers to the Roman system of reckoning time. The Romans divided their month into Kalends, Nones and Ides. The Kalends came on the first of the month. In March, May and October the Nones fell on the 7th and the Ides on the 15th. In the remaining months the Nones came on the 5th and the Ides on the 13th. The "Ides of March," therefore, was the period from the 15th to the 1st of the following month.

Mourning Cloak Lives on Sap

The mourning cloak, that sturdy butterfly that comes forth from its winter's hibernation in a woodpile or similaraly protected spot very early in the spring, feeds upon the exuding sap of trees before the flowers come. The same butterfly lingers long after the most of the flowers are gone in the fall, and then it finds the juices of decaying fruits such as apples to its liking.

More Than a Joke

By DUFORD JENNE

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

WILBUR took his mail from the country postmaster and said, "Mr. Stacey, know of any place round here where I could work for my board this winter?"

"So you want to farm it, eh?" Mr. Stacey said with his usual twinkling smile.

"Why not? I don't want to go back to the city; and I know that Rhode Island Reds are not apples but hens, and that the young son of a bull is not a bullet."

"Wal, you ought to do a pile of farmin' on that knowledge, my boy, but, howsoever, I'm not the man to stan' in the way of a young man goin' back to the soil. Hum—let's see." His eyes twinkled. "You go up to Laurel Hollow—up to the Hillview farm. They need a man there and need him bad."

"I'm the one they are looking for," Wilbur said as he started off.

"Laurel Hollow," Wilbur mused to himself. "Ought to be about right for a busted-down poet."

He began immediately to walk to Laurel Hollow. He had good reasons why he wanted the job and right off. The summer in the hills had won him back to fair health after the long grind of his work in the city, but he hated to go back until he was stronger and he almost wished he never had to return. Then he was short of funds. In fact, a hill refuge was about all the refuge left to him.

A half hour later he faced the farmhouse on the Laurel Hollow road.

"A wonderful view, and probably good, old-fashioned food. Yes, I think they need me [illegible]."

The door was opened at his knock, and he was looking into brown, pretty eyes, and a girlish face that was as pretty as the eyes.

"Yes, this is Hillview. Please come in," her clear voice said cheerfully.

He stepped into a room as cheerful as the voice, and he explained his errand.

Her eyes widened and a little smile crept into the brown depths. "Yes, we—we do need a man to help—us—"

He was not listening but wondering if the hills grew many such attractive young things as this in front of him.

She paused and looked at him, an odd look in her eyes, a look that gave him a queer thrill.

He agreed to her terms readily. He was to come the next day.

His weary feet were light on the way back and his voice was happier as he stopped in the crossroads store and post office to tell Stacey of his good fortune.

"Got my job, Stacey!" he announced.

The old man blinked over his glasses. "What's that?"

"I say I'm hired—for the winter, and I hope forever; and I'll show you I haven't forgotten what my old man pounded into me on the old home farm."

Stacey gasped. "Why, gosh-a-mighty, man, you can't live up there!"

"Well, why not?"

"Why, I sent ye up thar jest for a joke. This farm was left to the girl, Janice Ransom. She came and opened it up this summer, an' she's tryin' to run it—guess she jest come from some school whar she was studying, only her money gave out, and the old place was left to her by her grandad jest in time to help her out. She's livin' there alone—you can't go up thar with her alone. She agree to it?"

"Sure. So you did it as a joke?" Wilbur answered, a bit stunned.

"Yep, had no idea she'd take you. Didn't she say nothin'?"

"She hired me."

"Wal, 'twon't do here. If you's married, be all right."

"Well, I'll have to marry her."

Stacey gasped again. "What's that?"

Wilbur told him again.

The old man's strangled exclamation followed him down the steps, but outside Wilbur paused. She surely had hired him—that much was certain, and he would go on that basis.

The next day, with some doubt in his mind, he hired a team to take him and his luggage to the hill farm. It looked as cozy and as welcome as his previous trip.

As he stepped into the house, he noted two things; the girl's quick, friendly welcome, and an old silver-haired lady who was busy in the kitchen. A load went from his mind—with the old lady on hand, there was no chance of scandal.

He drove down that evening to the store for supplies for the house, a memory of her brown head bent over the slip she made out for him following him the whole way.

Stacey greeted him with a serious face. "She fixed it. I've found out. The minute after you left, she hired old Mrs. Clem to come up. She's a clever one, and I guess she liked your looks."

"You're right. And don't forget, deacon, that I liked hers. And besides, we'll be married one of these days."

Stacey blinked. "This is gittin' to be too fast a world for me. By gad, young man, I believe you!"

Old Flashlight and Other Scraps Make "Stararium"

Long hours of intensive study and effort and over paper, wood, wire and parts of an old flashlight have given Stuart O'Byrne, twenty-seven-year-old amateur astronomer of Hatton Lane, Brentwood, a miniature planitarium that unfolds the drama of the firmament in much the same manner as does the $10,000,000 Adler planitarium of Chicago.

While a true planitarium, of which there are only two in the United States, will show the movements of the stars, planets, the sun and the moon in their proper position with relation to the time of year and the latitude from which observed, O'Byrne's model will show only star movements. For this reason he has coined the name "stararium" for it.

Instead of a dome 70 feet across, under which several hundred persons can sit, the portable model has a three-foot half-dome into which only a dozen or so persons can look. However, they do not have to risk a stiff neck as they would under a large dome.

And although the apparatus may look rather crude, so precisely was it constructed that the revolving foot-long projector—a polyhedron of 13 surfaces—throws scientifically exact representations of 850 stars, in more than 50 constellations, onto the half-dome.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Has "Temple of Accuracy"

Close to the famous chestnuts of Bushy Park, near London, is what they tell the traveler is Britain's "temple of accuracy." It is not, contrary to wide belief, an old stone mosque or house of worship but a modern laboratory spread over 50 acres, and in which everything from a clinical thermometer to the Schneider trophy seaplanes is scrutinously tested. Its gauges measure a ten-thousandth of an inch. Virtually every mechanical product the British use finds its way to the "temple of accuracy" for a final word of aprpoval.

"I'M GOIN' BACK AS FAST 'S I CAN, SAYS OKLAHOMAN

"Ah'm going back fast 's Ah can," was the conservative statement of Ted Grose, of Newark, lanky Oklahoman, on the eve of his trip to Arkansas City, Kansas, where he will rejoin his bride.

Two days after his marriage in Oklahoma last fall Grose left for California, to join his brother, Leonard Grose, at Newark. Both have been employed there. Ted insists that he'd walk back to Askansas City if necessary, adding that continents weren't made to separate people.

Accompanied by his brother, Grose left Newark Sunday. He said that he may some time make his permanent home in this region.

NEWARK PARISH FETE ARRANGED FOR JUNE 24th, 25th

The annual St. Johns' celebration, given at Newark for the benefit of the St. Edward's church, will take place at the Newark pavilion on June 24 and 25. In Saturday night there will be a dance at the pavilion, music to be furnished by the Joy Boys.

On Sunday, following a high mass to be said at St. Edward's church at 10:30 a. m., there will be a free barbecue at noon. Another dance will follow at the pavilion in the afternoon. Towards evening there will be an auction of various articles contributed by people of the parish. Amusements, games and concessions will add to the attractions of the affair.

Latham Foundation Winners Announced

The Latham Foundation, which is established in forty-six states of the Union, closed the essay contest a few weeks ago.

Boys and girls of all grade schools are encouraged to express, once a year through original essays, their thoughts and feelings about animals which greatly interest them.

This foundation wishes to teach and encourage every child not only to be kind to all people, but to all animals as well. It has offered prizes to the children who write the best original story on "Being Kind to all Living Creatures."

Jesus Valencia, a pupil in the fourth grade of the Lincoln school, won the first prize. Aniceto Rocha, also in the fourth grade of the same school, won second prize, and Henry Martin, Cyrus Furtado, Lionel Roche, and Joe Vierria received honorable menton.

MOSQUITO DISTRICT CONTROLS SALT MARSH PESTS

Salt marsh mosquitoes appear to be completely under control, according to Harold F. Gray, engineer of the Mosquito Abatment District. No complaints of the presence of this type of insect pest were received by the district during May. This is the first month since the establishment of the district in 1930 that none of the large grey and brown mosquitoes were to be found in Alameda county.

Two major jobs which will reduce costs of controlling the mosquito nuisance were completed last month. A drain ditch 2,642 feet long, with three wooden control gates, was constructed across the Machado duck lease west of Alvarado during May. This drain ditch will enable the district to dry out the lease more rapidly at the close of the duck hunting season, consequently eliminating several oiling jobs which had to be done each year to prevent mosquito breeding. Drainage of approximately 600 acres of marsh on Dumbarton Point north of the Southern Pacific tracks was completed, and progress made on drainage of land to the south.

Regular maintenance of existing marsh drainage systems was continued. Approximately 5,917 lineal feet of slough and 20,000 square feet of drain ditch were cleared of silt and vegetation. Cutting and burning grass cleared 3,810 lineal feet of roadside ditch.

"CLEAR ALL WIRES" IS COMEDY DRAMA WITH LEE TRACY

"Rasputin and the Empress," featuring the three Barrymores, John, Lionel and Ethel, will conclude its run at the Hayward theater tonight. It is rated as one of the finest pictures ever filmed.

The fast action comedy drama, "Clear all Wires," featuring the riotous Lee Tracy, will be the attraction on Friday and Saturday. On the same program will be "Blondie Johnson," with Joan Blondell.

Rollicking Maurice Chevalier, naughtier than ever, leads the cast in "A Bedtime Story," to be shown on Sunday and Monday, June 18 and 19. A added attraction will be "The Cohens and the Kellys in Trouble," featuring Charles Murray and George Sidney.

"Employees' Entrance" with Loretta Young, will head the bill on Tuesday, June 20. Tuesday night is glassware night.

"The Barbarian" with Ramon Navarro and Myrna Loy, is slated to head the bill on Wednesday and Thursday, June 21 and 22.

Pleasanton Grammar Classes Enjoy Picnic

Kiddies of the fifth and sixth grades of the Pleasanton grammar school were given a picnic lunch at McKinley park last Tuesday noon by the Misses Florence Garatti and Lillian Olsen, instructors of the classes.

The kiddies left the school at about 11:20 for the park, where they enjoyed games of all kinds while the teachers prepared the meal. At noon they all enjoyed weiners, rolls, and ice cream and toasted marshmallows. They returned to their school work at one o'clock after an enjoyable picnic.

Farrington Dairy—"To Be Sure." —M30-A20c.

Taking place among the leaders in the grade "B" rating, the Rattlesnake patro of Niles Troop No. 2 led by Patrol Leader John McGowan and his assistant,, Rober Solon, won the right to enter the camporee to be held in San Francisco, September 1 and 2.

The Rattesnake patrol of Troop No. 1 captupred a place in the grade "D" rating. According to officials, the scores made by the different troops of the council at the Oakland camporee held two weeks ago, were very close.

J. P. Beesley, field executive for this end of the county is very pleased with the standings attained by all of the troops in his part of the council. He is especially proud of Troop No. 2, stating that its success is phenomenal in relation to its age of one year. Scoutmaster Pine commended the Rattlesnake patrol and its leaders for ability shown in camping tecnique.

The camporal, which will be held in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, on September 1, will include the best patrols from troops all over the state. There will be about thirty patrols from the Oakland area council entered. The Niles Rattlesnake patrol will be among them.

At the camporee, the Rattlesnake patrol scored 800 points out of a possible 1000. The members of the patrol are:

John McGowan, patrol leader; Robert Solon, assistant; Robert Kibby, Robert Zwissig, Jack Passy, Bud Mello, Julius Pine and Harold Wiseman.

The mothers of scouts of troop No. 2 met Monday night at the scout house and formed a Mothers' Clib for the porpose of adding to the flag fund of the troop. It was decided by the group that a card party will be given the evening of June 27. The place is still to be selected.

The Niles fire department has authorized the Niles scoutmasters and their assistants to act on guard duty about large conflagrations in the Niles district. This system is to train the scouts for regular duty at a future date.

According to plans made at the council office, there will be another township week at camp. Officials predict that this summer the "Week" will be bigger and more interesting than was that of last year.

Joseph Shinn, Jr., Off On Eastern Vacation
